"Bravo to you and the team you have assembled. It blows me away that you are able to give others such incredibly rich experiences."

BUILDING BETTER LEADERS

About Chris Warner...

Chris is an expert at creating and leading high performance teams. He is one of the rare adventurers on the speaking circuit with corporate and academic expertise, allowing him to educate, as well as motivate. Chris is one of only 11 Americans to summit both Everest and K2. He's led more than 200 international mountaineering expeditions. Chris guided the first ever reality TV show on Everest for ABC. He hosted a leadership special on the History Channel. He filmed, starred in and produced an Emmy Nominated documentary about his K2 expedition for NBC.

Chris has been teaching leadership for over 30 years and has been teaching at the Wharton School of Business since 2000. Every year he works with thousands of CEOs, sales teams, senior executives and entrepreneurs. His clients range from Google to the National Counter Terrorism Task Force. Chris is also the CEO/founder of Earth Treks, Inc. with 300 employees serving over 800,000 customers every year.

Your audience will be inspired by Chris' gripping high definition footage and the gut wrenching tales of leading teams when failure results in death. And they will be educated by his data driven, real world, formula for building high performance teams. Chris, through his inspiring, entertaining and educational keynotes and workshops, will help your organization build better leaders and high performance teams.
